

Information on beef meat production

You will now be offered 3 information items (some news article or video displayed on your screen) regarding the way cows are treated for beef meat production (animal welfare), the consequences of beef meat production on the environment and the relationship between beef consumption and health.

For each item you will have to answer 7 questions. Only one of these 7 choices will be implemented.

The computer will choose one of the three items (animal welfare, environment or health) at random, generate an offer and compare it to your choice. The other two will not be implemented (neither information item, nor payoff).

If the offer from the computer is refused, you will be redirected to equally long, but unrelated information.
