Graduating To Resilience in Kamwenge, Uganda

Pre-Analysis Plan

Principal researchers: Lasse Brune, Dean Karlan, Nathanael Goldberg, Doug Parkerson, Chris Udry

Implementing Partner: AVSI Foundation

Introduction

This document outlines the plan for analysis of a long-term follow-up survey of the first cohort (“Cohort 1”) of implementation as well as of an end-of-program survey for a second cohort (“Cohort 2”) of the project “Graduating To Resilience in Kamwenge, Uganda”.

The purpose of the study is to evaluate the impacts of different versions of a comprehensive livelihood program among refugees in the Rwamwanja Refugee Settlement and among residents in neighboring “host” communities. We aim to measure impacts on economic activity and well-being of households participating in the program that included a cash asset transfer of $300, cash consumption transfers totaling about $300, regular coaching, VLSAs, and other interventions.

The Cohort 1 long-term survey takes place in 2024, about five and a half years after the start of the program’s first of two cohorts, a little less than five years after the asset transfer and about four and half years after the end of a monthly cash consumption transfer. Previous rounds of follow-up data collection were conducted about half a year after the asset transfer and at the end of the 30-months program. The long-term survey takes place concurrently with an end-of-program survey covering Cohort 2 participants for whom implementation of 24-months version of the program that was modified based on learnings from the first cohort began after the end of the implementation of that first cohort.

Review of study design

We briefly review, first, the original study design for Cohort 1 before describing the design for the study of Cohort 2 and related modifications to the Cohort 1 study sample.

The original study was designed to measure the impacts of the first of two Cohorts of the implementer’s larger project. After household eligibility assessments by the implementer in the entire study area, we assigned a total of 114 clusters to Treatment or Control in a first-stage randomization (with clusters comprising entire villages, combinations of smaller villages, or splits of larger villages), followed by household-level randomization within Treatment clusters into one of three treatment arms or a “Spillover Control” group. We refer to households in the Control cluster as being assigned to the “Pure Control” group. The three treatment arms of Cohort 1 are:

- T1: Full program with individual coaching
- T2: Like T1 but with group coaching
- T3: Like T1 but without a cash asset transfer

At the conclusion of the first cohort of the program, after the end-of-program follow-up survey, the implementer rolled out a second cohort with a similar number of participants and located in the same villages as the first cohort. We worked with the implementer to roll out Cohort 2 in a way that preserved as much as possible the Cohort 1 design and allowed for an evaluation of Cohort 2. This resulted in two types of modifications to the study sample for follow-up of Cohort 1. First, a total of 24 Control clusters were randomly selected to be converted entirely for Cohort 2 implementation, reducing the number of Control clusters and, thus, the number of study households in the Pure Control arm. Second, after re-assessing program eligibility of control households both in Treatment and Control clusters, half of the eligible households were randomly selected for participation in Cohort 2. This created a Cohort 2 Treatment group and Cohort 2 Control group, which is a subset of Cohort 1 control group households. Cohort 2 treatment assignment thus further reduced the number of Cohort 1 Pure Control households as well as reducing the number of households in the Cohort 1 Spillover Control.

Any additional enrollment of households for participation in Cohort 2 was designed such as to balance the share of Cohort 2 across Cohort 1 Treatment and Control clusters. Finally, a sample of Cohort 2 participants separate from the Cohort 2 Treatment and Control study was individually randomized to receive a version of the program with or without group therapy. Design and planned analysis are described in a separate document.

Empirical analysis

Estimation of treatment effects will focus on key measures of economic activity and household welfare as laid out below. Impact estimates will primarily be based on mean regressions that control baseline values of the outcomes of interest or their proxies, as well as applicable stratification cell fixed effects and re-randomization variables.

For the Cohort 1 Long-Term survey:

- The primary analysis will consist of comparisons of experimental arms within Treatment clusters, including comparisons of Treatment arms T1, T2, and T3 relative to the Spillover Control group. To the extent that spillovers are positive, in line with estimates from the previously completed endline, comparisons of Treatment arms to the Control within Treatment clusters will provide a lower bound for the true treatment effect that includes spillovers. The advantage of this analysis compared to comparisons with the Control cluster Pure Control households is that effects will be estimated with higher precision due to the relatively larger available sample size and the fact that households were randomized individually within Treatment clusters.

- The primary analysis will be conducted separately for refugee and host communities.
- Observations will be reweighted in proportion to their representation in the sample, as out of the households that remain as Control, households that were eligible for Cohort 2 are underrepresented as part of the Control households eligible for Cohort 2 participation were assigned to participation in Cohort 2 under Cohort 2 (see “Review of study design” above).
- Secondary analysis will provide (less precise) estimates of the spillover effects by comparing the Spillover Control in Treatment clusters to the Pure Control in remaining Long-Term Control clusters, pooling refugee and host observations. The secondary analysis will also repeat the primary analysis on the pooled sample of refugee and host observations.
- For this secondary analysis, the analysis will need to overweight refugee community observations in proportion to their relative representation in the sample. The overall intervention was carried out evenly between refugee and host communities, but in the Long-Term study, relatively fewer refugee observations are part of the sample since more such observations had to be dropped in an effort to recruit a sufficient number of participants for Cohort 2.

For the Cohort 2 end-of-program survey, regression analysis will focus on the pooled sample of refugees and host communities to estimate an average effect of Cohort 2 Treatment relative to the Control due to the relatively limited sample sizes for separate analysis. In secondary analyses, impacts will be analyzed separately by host and refugee.

Outcome variables

The outcome variables that we will consider for our final analysis are listed below. We classify them into groups of primary outcomes of interest and secondary outcomes. For each group of primary outcomes, we create a summary measure by summing, averaging or otherwise aggregating the different outcomes within an outcomes group. The summary measure is indicated in the list of variables below. We will also winsorize the data if the standard deviation of a variable is more than 50% larger than its 1%-winsorized version.

The primary outcomes of interest for Cohort 1 and Cohort 2 analysis are:

- Consumption per capita ($)
- A food security index
- Value of productive assets including land ($)
- A subjective well-being index

(The analysis plan of previous rounds of follow-up data collection for Cohort 1 included household income as a primary outcome of interest. We have omitted it here because of the difficulty of constructing income variables net of costs for some components of the aggregate –in particular net agricultural income and net income from livestock activity– which is required for aggregation with other net income components such as income from employment and business profits.)

All outcomes that are not listed as primary outcomes are considered secondary outcomes. These variables will be derived from the attached survey instrument and are not listed individually in this document. We will not do adjustments for multiple hypothesis testing when analyzing secondary outcomes, since these are exploratory analyses.

Indices

For the construction of outcome group summary measures, we will use the methodology detailed in by Kling, Liebman, and Katz (2007), unless the index is a specific index in the academic literature, in which case we will use the method employed in that literature to compute the index. For those concepts without a preconceived index formula, our methodology consists in first signing all variables consistently such that higher is telling a consistent story for the index. Then, we standardize the individual components of the index, by subtracting the comparison group mean and dividing by its standard deviation. Then, we take the average of the now-standardized components into a single measure, and then again finally standardize the average (again to the comparison group mean and standard deviation).

Details on the construction of primary outcomes

Consumption

- Summary measure: Value of 30-day consumption (=sum of outcomes below), divided by the household's adult-equivalents
- Adult equivalent scale: 1st adult = 1; 2nd-n adults = 0.7; children 0-14= 0.5
- Consumption components:
  - 7-day food consumption ($) multiplied by 4.3
  - 30-day non-food expenditure ($)
  - 12-month non-food expenditures ($) divided by 12
  - 10% of total value of household durables ($)

Food security

- Summary measure: z-score index of FCS, HFIAS and HAZ
- Individual outcomes:
  - Food Consumption Score (FCS) following INDDEx Project (2018), based on number of days in past 7 days household has consumed different major food categories
  - Household Food Insecurity Access Scale (HFIAS) following Coates et al. (2007), based on eighteen questions about incidence and frequency of food security problems in past four weeks

- Household-average of height-for-age z-scores for children 0-59 months; for households without children in the relevant age-range we assign the mean of those who do (within experimental groups)

Productive asset ownership

- Summary measure: value of productive assets = sum of outcomes below ($)
- Individual outcomes:
  - Value of livestock ($)
  - Value of durable productive assets ($)
  - Value of fixed productive assets ($)
  - Value of business inventory (merchandise, unsold finished goods, raw materials, materials that have not been used, incomplete products) ($)
  - Value of land ($), computed as the area of land owned times the average of the median sales and purchase prices per area based on transactions from the past 5 years

Subjective well-being

- Summary measure: z-score index of components
- Cantril's ladder (1-10)
- Kessler-6 score

Data collection and timing of analysis

While data collection was partially completed –about 70%– at the time of submission of this analysis plan, the researchers have generally been blind to the treatment status. An exception is the analysis of survey attrition which was conducted during data collection and included comparisons of attrition rates by treatment status for the purpose of management of potential differential attrition.

consent	(Consent1) Introduction: Hello, my name is [enumerator]. I am working for Innovations for Poverty Action - a non-profit development research organization based in the US and Uganda. We are currently conducting a research study funded by the United States Agency for International Development and previously contacted you between April and December 2021 to ask you questions about your household and your current situation. We may have also followed up with you in January or February 2023. We are now contacting you again to follow up about your household's livelihood and wellbeing to better understand the welfare of people like yourself over time. This study covers approximately 13,000 households like yours in the Kamwenge area. Invitation to participate: We would like to invite you to participate in this survey. I would like to remind you that this study involves research, which is different from just receiving routine care or other program services, since we are trying to learn about households' welfare over time rather than only providing services. If you agree to participate, I will ask you questions about your household, for example your income sources and your wellbeing. Your participation is completely voluntary. You can refuse to answer the entire survey, stop the survey at any time by informing me that you wish to do so, or can tell us when a question makes you uncomfortable and we will skip that question. You will not lose any benefits that you currently receive if you decide not to participate in this survey. The survey will take approximately an hour and half to two hours to answer. All identifying information will be encrypted and will not be made public. Only the members of the research team will have access to them. We would also like to use the tablet computer to record our current location and make audio recordings of your answers. This information will help us collect accurate information and may also be used to take into account respondents' cultural backgrounds and other information that can tell us more about how someone is doing. As with all information we collect, it will be used for research purposes only. All the recordings will be encrypted and kept confidential. The recordings are voluntary and are not a requirement of participation in this survey. We will not record them against your will, and you will be asked to confirm if you agree at the beginning of the survey. All recordings will be destroyed after the end of the study. We are currently not planning another survey round but might visit you again in future to ask you about your welfare over time. You are free to decline participation in the future survey if you wish. Risks: If any question in today's survey makes you uncomfortable, please remember that you are free to skip any question you don't want to answer or stop this interview at any time.

	As with all research, there is a chance that confidentiality could be compromised; however, we are taking precautions to minimize this risk. Your information or information that may identify you will be kept as confidential as possible, to the extent allowed by local standards. We will disclose this information only with your permission or as required by law. The answers you provide will be stored securely in electronic form. Your name and any other identifying information will only be accessible to the affiliated researchers and will never appear in any sort of report that might be published or shared with organizations who may be interested in the results. Even if we first remove your name and other information that could directly identify you, your research information will not be used or shared with other researchers for future research studies. There are no other anticipated risks from your participation in the study. This study has been approved by the accredited Ugandan based Research Ethics Committee MUREC. Benefits: You will receive a bar of soap as a token of appreciation for your participation. Apart from that, you will not receive any program or services just by participating in this study. However, the information you provide will be very valuable in understanding more about the people in this area. Withdrawal: You may withdraw from this study or skip any question at any time and without any explanation. There will be no consequences for deciding to withdraw or skip a question. You can use the contacts that we have provided you with to inform the research team that you would like to withdraw after the interview. There are no circumstances under which the research team will withdraw you from this study against your wishes. Questions &amp; Concerns: Please ask us anything you want to know about this project now or later. If you have questions in the future regarding the research, please contact one of the members of our team: Lawrence Rubanga, Field Manager at IPA Uganda, Tel: 0775038619.
