Intro - survey mechanics

Instructions page 1/2 - survey mechanics

Welcome! We are conducting research into views of the effects of various scenarios on people's subjective wellbeing.

We will present you with three short scenarios about two people---A and B---and the purchase, sale, and production of mugs.

You will see the scenarios in a random order, one at a time. They may seem similar but each is unique, and you cannot skip or go back, so please read each carefully.

For each scenario, we ask you to judge:

1. how you think each person is affected in terms of their
 - satisfaction,
 - flourishing,
 - happiness;(these three are presented in a random order)
2. how wrong A's behavior towards B is; and, lastly,
3. how you think other respondents will judge A's behavior towards B.

It takes about 10 minutes to respond to the three scenarios and demographic questions.

☐ I have read the information above

Intro - survey content

Instructions page 2/2 – survey content

Please keep the following two points in mind when responding to the scenarios:

1. Do not worry about how your answers compare to each other. Instead, try to focus on each scenario in isolation.
2. You might find yourself wanting more information about a scenario. In these cases, please note we kept things short on purpose and we are not hiding anything. If something is not mentioned in the scenario, you should assume it is not there. Please just focus on what is stated in the text.

At the end of the survey, you will have an opportunity to provide any comments.
