

Treatment effects on the outcomes listed above will be studied descriptively and using regressions. One aspect of the empirical analysis will be the heterogeneity in treatment effects by baseline tax payments, baseline tax compliance, and income. We plan to impose sample splits to study different groups of taxpayers defined along the aforementioned dimensions.